

SPECIAL EDUCATION: WHAT EVERY EDUCATOR NEEDS TO KNOW

Audience: General and Special Educators; Arts, Health and Wellness, Technology, Library and other school Specialists

Linda Waters is back offering this highly praised course that is specifically intended for general educators, K-12, and new special educators. Linda's dynamic, engaging approach will lead you to come away from this course with a deeper, clearer understanding of special education and what your role is in the process of teaching students with and without disabilities.

This course will review the history of special education law and how the law has evolved into the current implementation of state and federal regulations. Emphasis will be placed on what general educators need to know to effectively implement mandated practices and meet the needs of students with disabilities.

Topics will include: The history of special education law and overarching themes; Section 504 and its relationship to Special Education; Response to Intervention (RTI) and its relationship to special education; Team process – referral, eligibility, participation guidelines, and IEP development and implementation; Accommodations, modifications, and specialized instruction; Legal requirements of discipline and bullying.
